

CATEGORY 7: Travel Notes

This category deals with Dr. D.Z. Nee's zoological journey to find a rare singing mouse. However, it appears that remaining field notes all have something missing...

To choose my next destination I should ask the gargoyles. Worst case scenario I can declare sanctuary in the cathedral.

Lessons learned: it's better to work hard for what you want than to rely on amphibians or friends from the other side.

On this journey you must be as swift as a cougar, as forceful as a great typhoon, as strong as an aging feline, etc.

Any dog is a good dog, even if they are blue, spiky, and exceptionally mischievous. I know I must leave these islands, but where to go from here?

I will meet you on my next location. I just hope that I can go from zero to hero.

I have not found my mouse here, but I have seen many, many llamas. I can only hope that when I find the mouse, it has the same groove as these llamas.

